

I Have, Who Has?

Fact and Opinion Game

How to play

1. Print, cut out and laminate the cards.
2. Students sit at their desks or in a circle on the floor.
3. Give each student a card. Students may need to play in smaller groups, depending on class size.
4. The student that has the sentence 'I am the starter' begins the game by standing up and reading their card.
5. Once they have read their clue, the student that has the matching fact or opinion on their card, stands up and reads what is on their card.
6. The game continues until the last person reads out 'I am the winner'

As your class plays this game more and more, track the time it takes to complete the game. Encourage your class to get faster.
