

2  Watch the video about traffic chaos.

3 Talk with your partner, group or class.

What did you see? What did you think? What did you wonder?

4 Step inside. Imagine you are the people who wear these hats. Write a comment that each person might say about the traffic video.

5 Think of three ways that traffic can be made safer.

For cars
For cyclists
For pedestrians

Rules are often made to keep people safe. Most people obey rules because it is the right thing to do. There may also be consequences, such as a penalty or fine, if they break them.

6 Talk with your partner, group or class about some rules you know that keep people safe.

Rules can also help to make things fair so that everyone can enjoy what they are doing. Different places will have different sets of rules.

7 Look at the images below and write the name of each place. Write one rule for each place.

8 Choose one of the rules and write about how it makes things fairer.

Rules need to be safe, fair and inclusive. Inclusive means that everyone, whatever their ability, needs to be involved. People shouldn't feel left out. Rules can be adapted to make them fairer and more inclusive.

9  Watch the video about blind tennis.

10 How have the tennis rules been adapted for blind people?

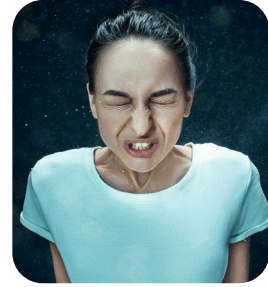

11 Think of a game you like to play. Look at the example and then fill in the table for your game.

Name of game	Hide-and-seeek
A safety rule	Stay within the boundaries.
A fairness rule	No peeping.
An adaption	Tim only counts to 10 because he is younger.
Who makes the rules?	Everyone playing agrees on the rules.
What happens if someone breaks a rule?	One warning, then if they do it again they cannot play anymore.

Every community has rules which people are expected to know and obey. Many places also have other, unofficial rules that are unwritten. Unwritten rules are rules about expected behaviour. They are not written or spoken but people are expected to know them.

12

▶ Watch the video about double dipping, then decide which unwritten rules have been broken in these images.

13

What is the one unwritten rule you think everyone should know and follow?

I think _____

Why I think that _____

14

Most people don't question rules but there is a saying: Rules are meant to be broken.

Give an example of when a rule could be broken and why.
